Whether you are looking for your first job or preparing to switch to a new job, you need to know what do do during an interview. During your job search, you get to learn a lot. Many people have a lot to say when it comes to providing tips for interviews for different jobs.

Since an interview is the most important phase before getting a job, here are some tips on how you can make your interviewer sign you up for the job.

- The first thing you have to do is practice. Standing in front of the mirror and practicing answers to general questions is the basic step. Jot down a few questions that you think are most likely to be asked of you. You can also use the web to provide you with a few sample questions. Learn how to answer these questions wisely and confidently.
- You must do a little research work about the company, its employers and the employees. Learn the location of the workplace prior to the interview date so that you reach on time. Also keep a pen and paper just in case you need to note down something.

- The next most important aspect when you are looking for local jobs is how you present yourself. Whatever you do, you just have to stay neat and look groomed. Dress formally, comb your hair nicely and brush your teeth.
- Don't forget to be courteous to the employer(s). A simple 'thank you' when you seat yourself and a handshake saying 'pleased to meet you' will be good.
- Keep calm and look confident at all times.
- Don't lie! Tell the truth during the interview, always being upbeat.
